THE CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 .- Only a moderate amount of business was transacted in wheat to-day and the feeling developed was rather strong. The principal feature was the strength of the low grades. The opening on Dec, was about than yesterday's closing, advanced to more, and then receded to, rallied to the receded to held steady, and the closing was about 15c, higher than

Corn was fairly active and a prime good husiness being transacted. The market opened at about the closing prices of yesterday, and soon afterwards propped a fraction and then the price ad ranced %, ruled steady, and closed with 36 gain. There was a moderate trade in oats, but the range was narrow. There was some buying by elevator men and by shop-ping houses, which had the effect of strengthening the near futures more than the latter ones. May was a trifle weaker, and % lower early, but reacted % and closed barely steady at 1-16 below yesterday.

Provisions—The speculative market for hog products ruled steady early, but there was very little trading in the absence of offerings and outside orders. It was not long, however, before the market ame moderately active all around firm and closed steady. The closing prices showed a gain of 15c, each in Oct. pork, lard, and ribs. Other deliveries varied from this, Jan. pork closed 25c.

Preparing For Contingencies. Two well known members of the racing set were discussing Donnelly's fall and its consequences when Roulette went to grass in the burdle race at Clyde park. Said one,

"So have I," returned his friend. "A man who's half shot never hurts himself." Then, as a happy thought seemed to strike him, he added, "And as accidents are always liable to happen, even to the most careful, let's go and take a peg."

Fatalism In Time of Battle. August 25.

We were at Snicker's Gap. The Eighth corps, under the White Wolf, as the Indians loved to call Ceneral Crook, had crossed the Shenandoah at Island Ford. The sun went down in a sea of delicious crimson, and even the most cautious were so influenced by the metaphor of peace suggested by the heavenly stillness that they began to regard as needless the precautions taken by our chief, the White Wolf.

Fires were lighted on the river bank; coffee, the soldier's clixir of life, was prepared and drunk. The twilight crept slowly on and was deepening into the gloaming when a staff officer rode down from an old farmhouse in front of us with a report that General Gallatin Jenkins was advancing upon us with a heavy force.

A few minutes later there was a scattering fire, as of pickets, and a mounted officer was ordered to call in our skirmish line. Just before mounting the young fellow detailed turned to me and said: "I feel strangely today. I wisk you'd do this for me. I cannot explain my reluctance, but none who know me will think me afraid." His face was ashy white; his lips looked dry. I saw that he was iii. Mounting his horse, I rode rapidly to the skirmish line and gave the order to fall back.

On my return I found this young officer seated at the foot of a tree, propped up against it. His eyes were fixed on the sky above him, and between his parted lips was a bubble of crimson foam. A bullet had passed through his chest, and he had but a few minutes to live.

What premonition had possessed him, from what mistaken motive he had chosen this place of safety, which proved so treach erons, will never be known. He was killed by a sharpshooter from such a distance that his death might be considered acci-

Better Than a Lawn Mower. "Speaking about tornadoes," observed

a traveling man, "I'll tell you of the strange antics of one I ran against while I lived in Kansas."

"I didn't know you were ever in that state," replied a man from Wilkinsburg.
"Oh, yes, I was. At the time I speak of I had a house in Wyandotte with quite a wide lawn in front. I watched the grass grow with painful misgivings, for I was opposed to working the lawn mower. You know how that is yourself," he said to the man from Wilkinsburg.

With a silent nod the latter acknowledged that he did. "Well, the grass kept getting taller and taller, and every day my wife would make some remark about how our lawn looked compared with the neighbors'. One day the neighbors who lived opposite me asked me what I'd take for my crop, and then I concluded that something had to be done. I sat on the front perch trying to work up enough courage to tackle that grass, when along came that tornado. We all rushed for the cyclone cellar. When we ventured forth, we expected to find the house gone into the next county, but it was there all right. But the grass! You won't believe me, but the grass was trimmed as close as a brand new mower could have taken it off, and the cyclone had even carried away the cuttings. I*suppose the reason the house wasn't touched was that the edge of the twister just reached to the end of the lawn. But tornadoes are queer critters. You can never tell how they're going to strike."

The First Posts.

-Pittsburg Telegraph.

The first posts are said to have originated in the regular couriers established by Cyrus about 50 B. C., who erected posthouses throughout the kingdom of Persia Augustus was the first to introduce this institution among the Romans, 21 B. C., and he was indicated by Charlemagne about 800 A. D. Leuis XI was the first sovereign to establish posthouses in France owing to his eagerness for news, and they were also the first institution of this nature in Eu rope. This was in 1470, or about 2,000 years after they were started in Persia, In England in the reign of Edward IV (1481) riders on post horses went states of the distance of 30 miles from each other in order to procure the ki ligence of the events that passed in the course of the war that had arisen with the Scots. A proclamation was Issued by Charles I in 1681 that "whereas to this time there bath been no certain intercourse b tween the kingdoms of England and Scotland, the king new commands his postmaster of England for foreign parts to settle a running post or two between Edinburgh and London to go thither and come back again in six days."—Chambers' Journal.

Breaking Up the German Army. A story is told of a certain young New York woman who was recently abroad. While walking out in Dresden one day the stolidity of the soldier sentinels pacing back and forth like automata attracted he notice. A suriden impulse seized her to test this cast iron rigidity, and waiting till one had passed she slipped into his little sentry box. When he reached it on his return, marching with measured precision, she suddenly jumped out before him, cry-ing "Boo!" in his very face. The soldier was completely upset at this unexpected performance and actually dropped his musket and ran away, while 14. TWICE TOLD TALES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. the young woman, having thus routed a portion of the German army, walked on and demurely rejoined her friends. The incident, it is said, came to the ears of the emperor himself, who expressed a wish to meet this extraordinary young woman, but Miss - admitted that her desire did not equal his, as she was not sure in quite what light her jesting impulse would be officially regarded.—New York Times.

A Bit of Iron In a Tree.

A year or two ago a vicious fellow near Bangor drove a spike into a sawlog and in this way smashed up a mill saw to spite the owner. But a recent happening at Welland, Ont., shows that such substances may get into logs without being put there for spite. A mill saw struck an oxshoe imbedded in a timber about four inches from the surface. How it came there is a puzzle, for it had grown into the wood. An owner of the land where the tree grew remembers that way back in the thirties some lumbering was done there in which oxen shod with iron were used, but none since then. It is believed the shoe was laid up on a limb close to the trunk and the tree in growing took it in.-Lewiston Jour-

The First Test of the Air Pump.

The first public test of the air pump was in 1654 by its inventor, Otto von Guericke in the presence of Emperor Ferdinand of Germany. Guericke applied the carefully ground edges of metallic hemispheres, 2 feet in diameter, to each other. After exhausting the air by his apparatus he attached 15 horses to each hemisphere. In vain did they attempt to separate them, be cause of the enormous pressure of the at-mosphere. The experiment was a great

1. THE REVERIES OF A BACHELOR; OR, A BOOK OF THE HEART.

By IK. MARVEL (Donald G. Mitchell.) This American classic has enjoyed a world wide circulation at its price of It is now offered for the first time at a nominal cost to our suribers. How agreeable is "Ik. Marvel" in this gem of a book from his pen, how quaint, how humorous, philosophical, pathetic and charming.

2. LAYS OF ANCIENT EOME. By LORD MACAULAY. Beautifully Illustrated. Macaulay's "Lays" are instinct with the very soul of poetry, and are full of heroic action and energy. Like Scoti's spirit-stirring ballads, they have a fine-picture-sque quality, with graphic breadth and great realistic power of expression. The English, no less than the Roman lays, have the breadth of the battle-field and the sounding notes of the charge to battle. The illustrations of this edition are unique, being executed in delicate outline.

S. A TILLYLOSS SCANDAL. By J. M. BARRIE.

A new work by J. M. Barrie, author of the Scottish classic, "The Little Minister," which has had a phenomenal sale, may be expected to what the lite-rary appetite of every intelligent ceader of high-class fiction. In stories of humble Scottish peacant life, Mr. Barrie is on his own special ground. He knows the characteristics of the Scottish weaver and the peasant class as the salior knows the wa. His sketches are full of a dry, quaint hamor, with a strong realism and great force and directness of narrative power. Never, since Scott's day, has Lowland Scottleh fiction had such an interpreter or so entrancing a decision of character in a strong a decision of character in a strong and accounts. depictor of character, lit up, at the same time, with old situations and amusing

4. THE HOUSE OF THE SEVEN GABLES. By NATHANDEL HAWTHORNE.

This masterpiece of Hawthorne's is full of the imaginative charm of romance. In felicity of touch, its author is unapproached by any writer since his own day. The work is, perhaps, the purest piece of poetic prose in all the range of 5. CRANFORD, By MRS. GASKELL. "Cranford," in its charming miniature painting and sketches of character, re-calls the best of Jane Austen's novels. It is a delightful picture of old world social life in an English country village, descriptive of the feelings, habits, opin-lons, character and social conditions of the little community. The story is quiet sees and with fine literary aptitudes in the writer. It is beautifully

6. THE COMING RACE, By LORD LYTTON. "The Coming Race," by Lord Lytton, is a clever and ingenious excursion into the realm of science, as the inventive mind of man may find it in the coming time. It presents a curious but fascinating picture of the human environments, as we may see it realized in the next century, when human needs will be served by every resource of electrical and mechanical contrivance—when "the coming race," for instance, will be enabled to exchange domestic helps for instances and nervery-footed automatics, and have at command every appliance adapted to the marvellously changes social and industrial condition The work is the product of a fanciful but rarely gifted and vernatile

7. DREAM LIFE, By IK MARVEL (Donald G. Mitchell.)

There is a profound mental study in this world-wide American classic. It contains a series of very vivid and picturesque studies of individual character and feeling. It has a fascinating power over the reader, while its graceful diction charms the literary appreciation and fills the mind with delightful, though

S. FRANKENSTEIN; OR, THE MODERN PROMETHEUS. By Mrs. Shelley.

Like Mrs. Crowe's "Night Side of Nature," Mrs. Shelley's "Frankenstein" is a book every one should read. Its author has great imaginative powers and a weird but original sector. There are passages in "Frankenstein" that appal the mind and make the flesh creep. Once read, the book can hardly ever be for-9. A BOOK OF GOLDEN DEEDS, By C. M. YONGE, This is just the book to put into the hand of youth, circulating a healthy morality, and true manly and womanly sentiments. Few books are better formed than this to develop and mould the tastes of the rising generation and encourage optimistic and patriotic ideas.

10. MOSSES FROM AN OLD MANSE. By NATHANIE, HAWTHORNS.

Another delightful companion for bile hours is this collection of magazine papers, which Hawthorne entitled "Mosses from an Old Manse," Like all his works, it is distinguished for its simplicity and truth. Its high literary excellence commends it anew to public favor. 11. THE SCARLET LETTER. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE

A remance of intense interest, exhibiting extraordinary power of mental analysis and graphic description. For an artistic exposition of Puritanism, as modified by New England colonist life, we have nothing like it in our literature. Like the best of Scott's novels, it is true at once to the local manners and scende

12. ESSAYS OF ELIA. By CHARLES LAMB. These charming compa are full of a gay humor, interspersed with many sly hits, happy puns and bright scintillations of wit; carefully elaborated as they are, hits, happy puls with the utmost case and grace, and composed in a spirit at they are written with the utmost case and grace, and composed in a spirit at once delicate and unobtrasive. 13. VICAR OF WAKEFIELD. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH. 3. VICAR OF WAREFILLS, by CLIVER GOLDSMIRE.

This beautifully illustrated edition of a famous English classic will increase its attractions for those who recognize the claim it has as essentially a "home book" for the whole reading world. Goldsmith has shed over the world the tenderest light of his genius, and the pastoral scenes in it are unrivalled, we had almost said unapproached, by any other writer of fiction. As Sir Walter Scott said of it, "We read the Vicar of Wakefield in youth and in age, and return to it again and again, and bless the memory of an author who contrives so well to reconcile us to human nature." The book, throughout its fascinating pages, while the characteristic traits of "Poor Poli"—a genial fundy, and the most exhibits all the characteristic traits of "Poor Poli"-a genial fancy, and the most Hawthorne, the most distinctly American and by far the most popular of our writers, has given the world an undying book in "Twice-Told Tales." The stories were originally contributed to an Annual, published now over fifty years ago, and being subsequently reprinted, are in reality "Twice-Told Tales." They have all being subsequently reprinted, as well as the subtlety of thought and insight, which the felicity of expression, as well as the subtlety of thought and insight, which are the special charm of the author of "The Scarlet Letter." Each story breathes its own air of contemplation, and its effect is heightened by the felicities of style no less than by the imaginative genlus of the author. 15. PAUL AND VIRGINIA. By BERN ROIN DE SAINT PIERRE. This Hyllic story, by a classic French writer of the wholesome remantic school, is an immerial book, and has wen a place for itself in the homes of almost every people who possess a literature and can appreciate the work of genius. It may, with some literaty propriety, he termed an idealized Robinson Crusce, and it has all the fascination of that renowned work. It is a book that is sure to go down the centuries, charming as well as edifying generations yet unborn.

16. STORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM. By (Ralph fron) Olive Schneiner 6. STORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM. By (Raiph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER.

Under the nom de plume of Raiph Iron, Miss Olive Schreiner has written an extraordinarily powerful story, full of graphic descriptions and the most appealing paties. The author seems to have followed no recognized mode of romance, paties. The author seems to have followed no recognized mode of romance, but struck out a new path in fiction for herself. Her novel consists of a series but struck out a new path in fiction for herself. Her novel consists of a series of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set-of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and seting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong intelligence and an imaginative ambition, remote from any possibility of culture. The work, which leaves an abiling memory on every reader, is one of the most remarkable novels of the age.

remarkable novels of the age. 17. LAYS OF THE SCOTTISH CAVALIERS.

These stirring ballads of Professor Aytoun, of Blackwood fame, have their only rival in Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is not lessented by the fact that they are to be met with in every school reader and in the ed by the fact that they are to be met with in every school reader and in the repertoire of most elocutionists and platform declaimers. Nor is popular appreciation affected by the fact that their author, in enshrining in patriotic and soul-stirring verse the heroic incidents of Scottish history, takes the "Royalist" side as against that of the "Covenanters." By WM. EDMONSTOUNE AYTOUN.

"Lucile." by the zecond Lord Lytton, late Governor-General of India and British Ambassador to Paris, is a novel in verse, with rhymed couplets, cast somewhat in the mould of Mrs. Browning's "Aurora Leigh." It is an enchanting with a strong admixture of romantic thought, plus fertility of invention and brilliant dialogue.

18. LUCILE. By Owen MEREDITH (Robert Lord Lytton,)

19. DREAMS. (In Press.) By (Ralph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER. 9. DREAMS. (In Press.) By (Raipit Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER.

Though unlike the "Story of an African Farm," "Dreams" has many of the characteristics which made Miss Schreiner's early work famous. The book is both interesting and suggestive, and, besides its high meditative qualities, is rich in the discussion of those mental and moral problems which this clever writer delights to propound to herself and lay before the thoughtful reader. "Dreams" is manifestly the work of a rare and uncommon mini.

20. BLACK BEAUTY. (In Press.) By Anna Sewell.

"Black Beauty" is a horse, and the story Miss Sewell so feelingly tells us is its autobiography. The tale well deserves its great popularity, for it is wonderfully realistic, and makes a strong appeal to those who love dumb animals and possess the institut of common humanity. It is a book to charm and im-press all who have to do with horses, especially those who seek to suppress that most senseless of all vices, cruelty to animals. "Black Beauty" is a horse, and the story Miss Sewell so feelingly tells us
